Benjamin Hodges of Dodge City who claimed a Spanish grant of 600,000 acres. has discovered that the same should be located in Texas and not in Southern Colorado, and hasso informed the United State land court at Santa Fe, before which his suit was pending. Now the real question is, did the grant ever exist at all? The court is finding out and deciding that many of them never did .- Denver

We were looking over Col. R. J. Hardesty's place this week and noticed that his pear trees are in full bloom, the cherry and plum trees are full of healthy looking fruit buds, and we observed a fine looking apple tree with plenty of beautiful fresh pink tipped buds that give promise of a good yield of fruit this year. The Colonel has a lot of thrifty looking damson plum trees that are begining to bear, and were getting a little oo much like a thicket, by reason of sprouting up from the roots. He presented the editor with about thirty trees which were transplanted to our residence grounds and are starting to grow nicely.
